

About Us

AltoHacks is a student-run coding competition partnered with Major League Hacking based in Palo Alto, California. We will provide students and developers from around the world with the opportunity to learn, compete, and interact with each other. Our primary goal is to promote STEM in the community and bring together individuals who share a passion in programming. Many students are unsure of their future profession; we hope that by exposing them to computer science, AltoHacks can open new opportunities for them as they move forwards in life. At the same time, everyone will get the chance to have fun and enjoy this invigorating event.

Why should you sponsor?

AltoHacks provides you the opportunity to establish your presence in the programming community and you can promote your company through advertisements on our social media, website, and merchandise. Additionally, you can hold demonstrations of your technology and other services to our attendees and build long-lasting relationships with brilliant students.

Ways you can sponsor us

- Provide a monetary donation
- Sending developers or mentors to the event
- Coordinating events and activities for hackers during the event
- Give out swag

Where your money goes towards

- Providing Merchandise for attendees
- Live Streaming and event hosting equipment
- Prizes
